“HEALING TOTEM”

JohnBob Carlos is a native Floridian and photographer capturing images of Florida’s wildlife, landscapes, cultures, and waterways. It is his way of creating a voice for Florida’s nature and preserving Florida’s culture. At a young age he felt a calling to paddle, hike, fish, and explore the Everglades. He was at home among the hammocks, swamps, strands, animals, Mangrove Islands, and Florida’s wild. In recent years he’s become deeply concerned about the state of Florida’s nature. In the last few years he’s seen the devastation of these areas, mostly due to money, development, pollution, business, and politics. Although his focus is photography, his role is in a state of evolution and changing due to his need to defend Florida’s wildlife and stand up for nature through the use of his art and voice. JohnBob’s photography will be on exhibit through October with a reception to meet the photographer on October 17.
